

Request for Proposal (RFP)

For: Policy Development in the British Council's Creative Economy Portfolio

Date 16 November 2020

1 Overview of the British Council

1.1 The British Council is the UK's international organisation for cultural relations and educational opportunities. We create friendly knowledge and understanding between the people of the UK and other countries. We do this by making a positive contribution to the UK and the countries we work with – changing lives by creating opportunities, building connections and engendering trust.

1.2 We work with over 100 countries across the world in the fields of arts and culture, English language, education and civil society. Each year we reach over 20 million people face-to-face and more than 500 million people online, via broadcasts and publications. Founded in 1934, we are a UK charity governed by Royal Charter and a UK public body

1.3 The British Council employs over 10,500 staff worldwide. It has its headquarters in the UK, with offices in London, Manchester, Belfast, Cardiff and Edinburgh. Further information can be viewed at www.britishcouncil.org.

2 Introduction and Background to the Project / Programme

2.1 The British Council is currently refreshing its Arts strategy up to 2025. This includes a distinct focus on creative economy as a portfolio area, under which creative economy policy development is a major strand. The British Council aims to build on its long-standing history of creative economy work to build a more cohesive, global policy offer.

We are looking for applications from consultants and organisations to review three identified strands of the British Council's creative economy policy work (as outlined in more detail in Section 7, specification) 1) Project work and policy work go hand-in-hand 2) The British Council as a regional convenor 3) Working at city or local level. The maximum budget for this piece of work is £30,000 inclusive of VAT and the final report is expected to be delivered at the end of March 2021.

The aims of this consultancy are to a) identify the policy levers, activities and methodologies that have underpinned work to date b) analyse how they have supported cultural and economic development in host countries/cities/regions c) propose how the work can be further developed to form a model for the British Council's global creative economy policy offer d) identify opportunity areas for the development of the portfolio area.

Background

The British Council's global creative economy work has, in very simple terms had three phases over the last decade and a half

- Introducing creative economy concepts and initiatives to governments and civil society organisations, encouraging discussion, definitions, mapping and data collection.
- Developing relationships with individual partner organisations, co-designing and delivering programmes and contributing to the growth of expertise.
- Broadening the agenda to consciously integrate social and cultural impacts with economic impacts in selecting partners, activities and evaluations

Some of the key successes have been

- Promoting the importance of the 'creative industry/creative economy' concept and encouraging State, municipal and other bodies to engage in it by doing basic mapping
- Identifying and connecting individuals as pioneers, evangelists and role models
- Devising programmes, training events and exchanges that connected with needs 'on the ground'
- Identifying organisations, events or particular industries that were ready for that kind of stimulus and that have the capacity and potential to be more economically sustainable and successful
- Brokering mutual exchanges across the world - promoting knowledge sharing between the UK and the regions, countries and cities in which the British Council works.

It is important to note that the British Council is a cultural relations organisation that launched its creative economy work from within its larger Arts team. This means that the emphasis of the work has always been more at the cultural, arts and well-being end of the creative industry spectrum rather than at the wealth and jobs generating end (the big design, marketing and other B2B businesses).

2.2 The purpose and scope of this RFP and supporting documents is to explain in further detail the requirements of the British Council and the procurement process for submitting a tender proposal. Please see section 7 for a more detailed specification.

7 Specification

The British Council invites proposals from UK suppliers to respond to the call 'Policy Development in the British Council's Creative Economy Portfolio'. The total budget for this proposal is £30,000 inclusive of VAT.

There are three key areas of focus of this consultancy piece which are outlined in more detail below:

1. Project work and policy work go hand-in-hand
2. The British Council as a regional convenor
3. Working at city or local level

1) Project work and policy work go hand-in-hand

Context

Often by initiating and supporting practical cross-disciplinary projects and promoting mapping and data collection, British Council teams have been able to engage the interest of governments and influence the evolution of policy.

The National Strategy for the Development of Creative Industries with the government of Vietnam (2016), the establishment of the Department for Creative Industries and the BEKRAF development agency in Indonesia, the relationship with the Federal government in Nigeria, all demonstrate that providing evidence of the significance of the creative sector, whether through mapping, through the organisation and promotion of festivals, or by other means, has engaged national government. In Indonesia, Vietnam, Mexico and elsewhere, developing these relationships with government departments has led to governments funding or co-funding programmes and embedding cultural and creative economy strategies more securely.

The aim is to move from ad hoc or occasional programme interventions to work more collaboratively at national, regional or local level to co-design and implement new policies. A prominent current example is the 'Innovation for Culture' programme with the regional government of Jalisco in Mexico. The key features of this programme include the fact that it is not just proposing a new cultural policy for Jalisco but a new approach to developing policy by engaging citizens and civil society groups, by incorporating thinking about human rights, including access to culture, and thereby integrating project and policy work in a most effective way.

Brief

- Track the story of how the government/policy relationships were built in Indonesia, Vietnam, Nigeria and Mexico to establish the key drivers and success factors in each case.
- Analyse the extent to which practical project work opened the door to government - with a view to developing a model for future initiatives with government at national, local and municipal level, offering them a coherent suite of services that would help them develop their own creative economy strategies and innovate their service design in ways that engage communities and civil society groups

Please note that there is an existing piece of research which investigates the role and impact of the British Council in creative and cultural economy development in Colombia, Indonesia, Nigeria and Vietnam, summary report here. There are accompanying in depth country reports which will be provided to the successful supplier. The focus for the supplier will be looking at this existing evidence and making suggestions for developing a future model for the British Council's policy work.

2) The British Council as a regional convenor

Context

The British Council's regional networks provide a unique resource for national and local governments. They also allow the British Council to facilitate conversations, identify trends and share insights between governments and cities within regions.

The British Council has the ability to be "an eco-system catalyst", where small but well-judged initiatives can have a pivotal impact over time. In some cases relatively little investment in people or money can show returns in terms of influencing government, and thus act as a showcase for British Council work in larger States where public profile and national impact are more difficult and costly to achieve.

The spread of creative industry markets in Latin America and the 'exporting' of the Indonesian Creative Cities Network (ICCN) to other countries in SouthEast Asia are testimony to the value of this regional networking approach. The Creative Central Asia Forum, having started as an essentially Kazakh initiative, with some attendance from entrepreneurs and policy professional in two neighbouring countries, has grown within three years to include all five of the central Asian countries and is beginning to acquire some of the characteristic of a regional marketplace as well as a conference, enhancing both its value to participants and its potential to become self-sustaining.

Brief

- Analyse the way in which ICCN initiatives were spread to other SouthEast Asian countries; how the Creative Central Asia Forum grew to embrace all five 'stans' and how early Creative Economy work in Colombia encouraged take-up in other Latin American States.
- Analyse how these initiatives have supported cultural and economic development on a regional level
- Analyse the extent to which these were – or could have been - designed from the outset as regional initiatives.
- Consider whether regional dissemination of successful initiatives could be more explicitly included in the development of future strategies.

3) Working at city or local level

Context

Some of the most successful creative economy interventions take place at local level. The growth in global 'creative city' networks of various kinds is testimony to the fact that Mayors and city administrations are attracted to the idea of developing creative and cultural offers as central to their reputations and city branding. The British Council has a wealth of experience working in cities, large and small, and experience demonstrates that sometimes relatively modest projects in small cities can generate large returns in terms of impact and have a powerful exemplary effect on other communities and at national level.

Brief

- Analyse work in 5 - 6 cities (large and small) in which British Council programmes have had a particularly powerful impact on local cultural and economic development. The cities will be agreed between the British Council and the successful supplier
- Identify instances where these initiatives have generated impact nationally or beyond
- Look at how this work could be used for developing a model for future initiatives

Please note that whilst the cases outlined in the above briefs are expected to be prioritised there will be room to negotiate other possible case studies during the course of the work if beneficial to this body of work.

Deliverables:

- Check in meetings: regular (TBD) check in meetings with core British Council team and expert advisor John Newbiggin

- Final report: including an executive summary, methodology, findings, case studies and recommendations for future programme iterations. We would like the final report to be presented in a highly accessible way including infographics, diagrams images etc. to convey vital information visually. The report is to be submitted by the end of March 2021 in a format to be confirmed in writing by the British Council.
- Final presentation to British Council internal stakeholders end of March 2021.

The British Council will provide access to relevant internal reports/resources and will provide contact details of key staff/stakeholders. The full report, executive summary and all raw data associated with the research will be the intellectual property of the British Council.

We are looking for supplier with the following experience:

- Experience in international creative economy policy development
- A passion for inclusive creative economy development
- A track record in influencing or informing policy development – through research/advisory roles/practical programme implementation
- A track record in designing large scale global portfolio programmes
- Excellent written communication skills
- Exceptional communication and relationship management across a diverse and varied range of stakeholders
- The capacity to deliver high quality work to agreed timeframes
- Understanding/experience of the British Council's work in policy development (desirable)

13.4 The British Council may at any time request further information from potential suppliers to verify or clarify any aspects of their tender response or other information they may have provided. Should you not provide supplementary information or clarifications to the British Council by any deadline notified to you, your tender response may be rejected in full and you may be disqualified from this Procurement Process.

14 Evaluation Criteria

14.1 You will have your tender response evaluated as set out below:

Stage 1: Tender responses will be checked to ensure that they have been completed correctly and all necessary information has been provided. Tenders responses correctly completed with all relevant information being provided will proceed to Stage 2. Any tender responses not correctly completed in accordance with the requirements of this RFP and/or containing omissions may be rejected at this point. Where a tender response is rejected at this point it will automatically be disqualified and will not be further evaluated.

Stage 2: The completed Qualification Questionnaire (if used) will then be reviewed to confirm that the potential supplier meets all of the qualification criteria set out in the questionnaire. Potential suppliers that meet the qualification criteria will proceed to Stage 3. Potential suppliers that do not meet the qualification criteria set out in the Qualification Questionnaire (if used) may be excluded from the Procurement Process at this point. Where a potential supplier is excluded at this point, its tender response will be rejected in full and not evaluated further and the supplier will automatically be disqualified from this Procurement Process.

Stage 3: If a bidder succeeds in passing Stages 1 and 2 of the evaluation, then it will have its detailed tender response to the British Council's requirements evaluated in accordance with the evaluation methodology set out below. Information provided as part of Qualification Questionnaire (if used) responses may also be verified as part of this stage.

14.2 Award Criteria – Responses from potential suppliers will be assessed to determine the most economically advantages tender using the following criteria and weightings and will be assessed entirely on your response submitted:

Criteria	Weighting
Supplier quality and track record	[40]%
Methodology and Approach	[40]%
Commercial	[20]%

14.3 Scoring Model – Tender responses will be subject to an initial review at the start of Stage 3 of the evaluation process. Any tender responses not meeting mandatory requirements or constraints (if any) will be rejected in full at this point and will not be assessed or scored further. Tender responses not so rejected will be scored by an evaluation panel appointed by the British Council for all criteria other than Commercial using the following scoring model:

Points	Interpretation
10	Excellent – Overall the response demonstrates that the bidder meets all areas of the requirement and provides all of the areas evidence requested in the level of detail requested. This, therefore, is a detailed excellent response that meets all aspects of the requirement leaving no ambiguity as to whether the bidder can meet the requirement.
7	Good – Overall the response demonstrates that the bidder meets all areas of the requirement and provides all of the areas of evidence requested, but contains some trivial omissions in relation to the level of detail requested in terms of either the response or the evidence. This, therefore, is a good response that meets all aspects of the requirement with only a trivial level ambiguity due the bidders failure to provide all information at the level of detail requested.
5	Adequate – Overall the response demonstrates that the bidder meets all areas of the requirement, but not all of the areas of evidence requested have been provided. This, therefore, is an adequate response, but with some limited ambiguity as to whether the bidder can meet the requirement due to the bidder's failure to provide all of the evidence requested.
3	Poor – The response does not demonstrate that the bidder meets the requirement in one or more areas. This, therefore, is a poor response with significant ambiguity as to whether the bidder can meet the requirement due to the failure by the bidder to show that it meets one or more areas of the requirement.

0	Unacceptable – The response is non-compliant with the requirements of the RFP and/or no response has been provided.

14.4 Commercial Evaluation – Your “Overall Price” (as calculated in accordance with requirements of Annex [3] (Pricing Approach) for the goods and/or services will be evaluated by the evaluation panel for the purposes of the commercial evaluation. Prices must not be subject to any pricing assumptions, qualifications or indexation not provided for explicitly by the British Council as part of the pricing approach. In the event that any prices are expressed as being subject to any pricing assumptions, qualifications or indexation not provided for by the British Council as part of the pricing approach, the British Council may reject the full tender response at this point. The British Council may also reject any tender response where the Overall Price for the goods and/or services is considered by the British Council to be abnormally low following the relevant processes set out under the EU procurement rules. A maximum offer score of 10 will be awarded to the tender response offering the lowest “Overall Price”. Other tender responses will be awarded a mark by application of the following formula: (Lowest Overall Price/Overall Price being evaluated) x 10 (rounded to two decimal places) = commercial score.

14.5 Moderation and application of weightings – The evaluation panel appointed for this procurement will meet to agree and moderate scores for each award criteria. Final scores in terms of a percentage of the overall tender score will be obtained by applying the relevant weighting factors set out as part of the award criteria table above. The percentage scores for each award criteria will be amalgamated to give a percentage score out of 100.

14.6 The winning tender response – The winning tender response shall be the tender response scoring the highest percentage score out of 100 when applying the above evaluation methodology, which is also supported by any required verification evidence (to include, without limitation, any updated information or references relating to any Qualification Question responses) obtained by the Authority relating to any self-certification or other requirements referred to in the Qualification Questionnaire (if used).
